Ways to Serve on Veterans Day

November 11 is Veterans Day. Currently, there are more than 22 million Veterans who have served in the United States Armed Forces; help thank and honor them in November! Plan a Veterans Day event at your school, sign up to be a volunteer at a VA hospital or facility, find volunteer opportunities near you to help veterans and military families, or interview a veteran and share their story as part of the Library of Congress's Veterans History Project.

Young People Who Transform Lives and Change the World Honored

An empathetic young lady in North America is helping other teenage girls half way around the world stay in school. A teenage boy is helping his grandmother and hundreds of other Alzheimer patients continue to recognize family members even as their memories fade. These are two of five extraordinary youths from across the nation whom The Children's Museum of Indianapolis celebrates Friday evening, November 11, 2016 during the 12th annual Power of Children Awards event.

November is National Philanthropy Month

While YPII celebrates philanthropy year-round, National Philanthropy Month allows you to build awareness-while the focus is on-of the impact your work has on the community. Take this opportunity to submit an OP-Ed in your local paper showcasing your value and shine a light on the work of local nonprofits and youth philanthropy efforts on social media.
